

EducationUSA Canada Spotlights

University of La Verne

in Southern California

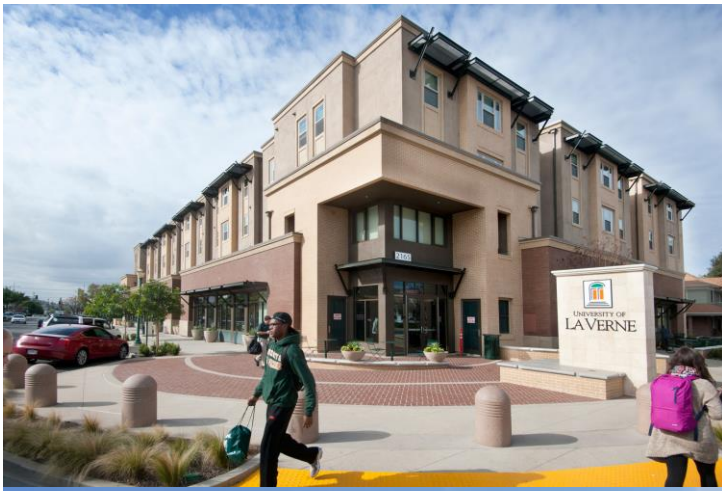

The University of La Verne, in beautiful Southern California, enjoys a rich 123-year history, yet is vibrant, spirited, and forward-thinking—which creates an atmosphere that feels brand new.

The city of La Verne is centrally located. One can go to the beach, the mountains, or “the city” all in the same day! The campus is only 55 kilometers east of Los Angeles, 45 kilometers from Orange County beaches, and 20 minutes north of Disneyland. This prime location enables students to get involved in research projects and internships, as well as take advantage of local cultural, intellectual, and recreational resources while based in a safe, quiet, and distraction-free environment.

Founded in 1891, the University of La Verne is a private, independent university, and home to 2,700 traditional undergraduate students and almost 2,000 graduate students on the main campus. The international student population at La Verne is robust, with approximately 1,200 international students representing nearly 20 countries. Learn more about the University of La Verne online.

While on campus, students engage in a variety of clubs and activities outside the classroom. See the different clubs and organizations and 18 NCAA Division III athletic teams that add to the university experience at La Verne. With more than 50 majors, a low student to faculty ratio of 12:1, and an opportunity to engage in internships and research projects starting from the first year, there truly is a place for each and every student.

Go here to complete your application to the University of La Verne.

La Verne prides themselves in attracting some of the best students from around the world, and they have recently received numerous awards and accolades based on the academic experience and return on investment for students.

The university recognizes the contributions that international students bring to their campus. Thus, La Verne is committed to awarding high-achieving students with international merit scholarships. These scholarships range between $5,000 and $18,000 per academic year. Scholarships are renewable with the stipulation that students maintain a satisfactory GPA.

You can learn more about the University of La Verne by taking a virtual tour of campus, checking out student blogs, looking at the view book, or connecting with them on Facebook, Twitter or YouTube.